

Averaging method for RFDEs

Jaqueline B. Godoy
Universidade de São Paulo, Brazil

Abstract. The basic problem of the theory involving the averaging method is to determine when the behavior of solutions of a certain autonomous retarded equation approximates the behavior of solutions of a complex system. The treatment is adequate to reducing the complex system to a more simple model preserving the qualitative properties of solutions. We present a new result on this subject for retarded equations with impulses.