

The interaction of genetic networks and developmental factor in morphogenesis: a PDE approach

Pablo Padilla

Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México, Mexico

Abstract. We consider several examples in developmental biology ranging from the flowering patterns and root formation in plants to the networking of the lung, in which the interaction of a genetic regulatory network with other factors like growth or the geometry involved plays a central role. We discuss the modeling aspects as well as some analytical and numerical results.